My Project Drop-out and youth service center in E-lan district (north of Taiwan)

Through Good Shepherd service experience for vulnerable children and youth, we found poverty, lack of education, limited family support, or dysfunctional family were significant factors for their choices. Therefore, Good Shepherd Services in Taiwan started to provide youth in crisis since 1996 when a dropout center was established to provide counseling for the prevention of dropouts from school, drug/alcohol abuse, and teen girl pregnancy.

Our mission is to seek and assist children and youth in crisis and help them to continue with unfinished school studies to earn middle school degree. Furthermore, we help them identify their gifts and potential talents, as well as personal life purpose. During summer and winter break, we provide outdoor activities for children and youth to challenge their physical and psychosocial capacity to building pro social behaviors and life meanings.

Below are the pictures of activities.
